If you were taking 50th Street to get to work Friday morning, you might have seen part of a train off its tracks. Just before 7am, part of a northbound CN train derailed at 50th Street north of the Yellowhead.

Warren Chandler, CN's regional manager for public affairs, says the incident is under investigation.

"There were no injuries involved in the incident, and there were no blocked crossings as a result," adds Chandler.

CN worked most of the morning to get the derailed cars back on track which is part of the mainline through Edmonton.

Chandler says the derailed cars were not carrying dangerous goods. (ks, em, twd)
